Luke describes the wise builder as digging deep and laying the foundation on a rock. The Rock on which we build is Christ Himself. In this parable, Christ teaches us the importance of doing as well as hearing. In His description of the two builders, He judges them, not only by their care in building their houses, but also by the foundation on which they build. in of the righteous is o

A rock foundation represents true understanding and right action-true conviction and commitment manifested in righteousness. Only in obedience and dedication to a personal relationship with Christ the Rock can we find emotional and spiritual stability-without which even our most dedicated purposes rest on shifting sand. invation of the righteous is o the Lond shall help them, and d

But after the seasonal floods, representing trials and tests, such a builder would have nothing left but a heap of ruins. A sandy foundation represents empty preference and mere external religion based on false knowledge. The sand reflects the shifting, uncertain feelings some foolish people possess, the only ground upon which they act. The wicked shall be cut off. ation of the righteous is o salvation in the time of trouble.

Here we have a compact and instructive presentation by our Lord, illustrating for us a distinct likeness of two sorts of people, both of whom pay at least some attention to what Jesus says. The context of this parable is that of a true disciple vs. one that is false. The contrast is given in three ways in Matthew 7:
